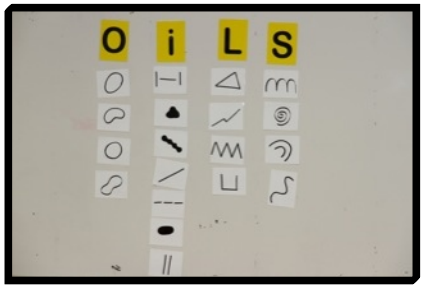
OiLS Review Activities



1. Print or make letter cards - O, i, L, S. Make examples of each element of shape by drawing examples on recipe cards. Display O, i, L, S cards on a wall or board. Pass out the example cards and have students put them under the letters.
2. V*ariation: Under each letter, have students draw examples on the dry erase board.*

3. Use printed O, i, L, S cards with a spinner and individual dry erase boards. One student spins the spinner. When the spinner stops, the other students draw examples of the element on their boards and hold them up for the "spinner" and tutor to evaluate. Continue until each student has had a chance being the "spinner".
4. Variation: Each child takes a turn spinning the spinner and then finds an example in the room. The remaining students decide if it's a correct example.

5. Give each student a Dice Drawing Sheet by expressivemonkey.com and a die. With the throw of a die, students can practice drawing. If time, students can share their drawings.
6. Variation: This activity can be done as a whole group. Students can take turns rolling a die and the teacher or students can draw the creation on the board. This is a great option for practicing identifying the elements of drawing (OiLS) or for teaching the activity to be used on another week as a warm-up. (Use the larger Dice Drawing Sheets for whole group practice).

The same Dice Drawing Sheets can be used each week because drawings will turn out different based on the roll of the die.*
